

The California View

By Cameron Tobin

The bone-dry
Grass that stretches
Farther than the horizon
Is splattered with little patches
Of bright green parasites

The fields are broken
By a lone construction road
That allows us to continue our crusade
Of expansion into a barren wasteland

But progress is progress
And a wasteland
Is free real-estate.